CURED HIS LAME BACK WHEN 36

Mr. Samuel Martin, of Strathroy, Ont., passed twenty years of his life in misery, suffering tortures from lame back. He tried nearly all advertised remedies and household recipes, but received no benefit from any of them.

Some months ago, seeing Glin Pills advertised Mr. Martin purchased a box. The relief which Mr. Martin experienced after he had taken one box was so great that he knew he had found the right remedy at last. He used two more boxes and is now completely cured.

Box, a box, 6 for $2.50. At all druggists. Free sample if you write National Drug & Chemical Co., Dept. N. U., Toronto.

The original Glin Pills made by National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, are sold only in this box.

 Brown—Yes.
 Jones—Well, what kind of excuse do you put up to your wife for living.

ARE YOU ANAEMIC OR BLOODLESS

If So, the Spring is a Most Trying Time for You

Your Hope Rests in Getting the Blood Rich and Red by Using
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Shortness of breath and fatigue with slight exertion, failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions, and pallor of the gums and eyelids are among the indications of anaemia, or bloodlessness.

The blood is thinner and more watery in the spring than at any other season, and for this reason the person who is subject to anaemia, or lack of blood, suffers the most.

You must increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, and this can best be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment does not merely stimulate the organs to renewed activity, but cures by building up the system. For this reason its benefits are both natural and lasting.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, neuralgic and sciatic pains and weakness and irregularities of the vital organs become a thing of the past when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It is only natural that you should get strong and well when this building-up treatment is used, for it supplies the blood in condensed and easily assimilable form, the elements which go to form new, rich blood.

Your digestive system has failed to extract sufficient nutrition from the food you eat, and hence the necessity of such direct nourishment is supplied by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, at all druggists, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

HOW TO TREAT SKIN TROUBLES

GREASY OINTMENTS OF NO USE—THE TROUBLE MUST BE CURED THROUGH THE BLOOD

It is not a good thing for people with a tendency to have pimples and a sallow complexion to smear their faces with greasy ointments and salves. In fact they couldn't do anything worse, because the grease clogs the pores of the skin, making an irritating rash, a scorching boracic wash may help to allay the pain or itching, but of course it doesn't cure. Skin complaints arise from an impure condition of the blood and will persist until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema and skin disorders because they make new, rich blood that drives out the impurities, cleans the skin and imparts a glow of health.

E. L. Peterson, Brantford, Ont., says: "I suffered for years from eczema, which brought with it other troubles, such as a poor appetite, headaches and weakness. The portions of my body affected by the disease were itchy and hot. I tried several doctors and all sorts of lotions and ointments, but did not get the least relief. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to do so. After using the Pills for some time the irritation and heat began to grow less and I seemed in better health otherwise. I continued taking the Pills for several months and every vestige of the trouble disappeared, and my skin is again free from blemish as in youth. Given a fair trial Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will not disappoint those suffering from skin eruptions or weakness of any sort."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all those troubles due to poor blood simply because they make new, rich, red blood. That is why these pills cure common diseases like anaemia, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, headaches, indigestion, St. Vitus dance, and the general weakness and special ailments that only women folk know. Sold by all medicine men, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockton, Ont.

The Bones Are Genuine.

The opening up of a grave on St. Anne's Island, said to contain the bones of the great Chief Tecumseh, brought considerable criticism on certain Wallaceburg citizens about a year ago. St. Anne's Island is a low, flat piece of land in the river channel off west of Wallaceburg and had often been claimed to be the burial place of the Indian chief. Those who conducted the work of digging up the bones felt certain that they had the actual remains of Tecumseh, but there was instant criticism from various parts, not only over the unauthorized desecration of the grave, but also over the possibility of the bones not being those of Tecumseh at all.

It is now stated that the Board of Trade of the town with bring forward evidence to prove that no mistake was made in opening the grave, and that it is really the bones of Tecumseh which were found.

Part of this proof will be in an affidavit concerning the statement made by an aged Indian woman that the bones in the grave were those of Tecumseh. This old squaw is said to have been present when the grave was opened and have made her statement there as well as elsewhere that the searchers were on the right track. Her statement is said to have been most emphatic in this respect, and this may count in showing the truth of the matter.

New Employment For Women.

A new employment for women which is most profitable is that of sustaining invalids. A young woman student in one of the larger cities found that there was an opening for some one who could play games with persons recovering from illness, and the demand was so great that all her spare time was occupied in this manner. Chess and checkers were much in demand with women as well as men. Next must be used to know when to win a game and when not to, for the game must have all the appearance of a close contest.

Fon Cleaning Linings Collars.

Those who wear lingerie waists with lace collars will find it useful to know a safe and easy way to clean the collars, which are apt to become soiled when the waists are comparatively clean. Especially is this the case in traveling, and many a woman has been obliged to send a waist to the laundry simply because of a black line around the collar from a dusty coat.

In such cases it comes as a relief to learn that a small nailbrush and the ordinary bathroom soap, if properly applied, will cleanse a collar perfectly. Take the waist and place the collar carefully on the edge of the bathroom washbowl. Be sure only the collar touches the marble. Then wet the nailbrush with warm soapsuds and brush it rapidly over the soiled places. Do not vibrate the collar in the bowl, but allow it to remain on the edge of the bowl, and with the nailbrush frequently dipped in fresh water keep brushing the lace until the soap is entirely out of it. Next place the waist carefully over the back of a chair and brush the turkish towel over the collar, so that the water will be arranged to half the wet collar in shape just as it was removed from the basin edge. If this method is taken care of, the collar will be clean and perfectly fresh.

Nothing is more effective for cleaning Irish lace collars than this method of brushing them clean with the soap, wet brush and placing them on the bath towel to dry.

Anything to Oblige.

There was no greater admirer of the qualities of Lord Fisher, who, having attained his seventieth birthday, retires from the active list of the navy, than Queen Victoria. A delightful story is told of how, when a certain French admiral was about to pay a visit to Portsmouth, when Sir John was admiral superintendent at the dockyard—the Queen requested him to be sure and "be very nice" to the visitor. "With a face as impassive as a Chinese mandarin the admiral replied: 'I'll kiss him if you wish it, ma'am.' Devoted to duty, Lord Fisher would brook no shirking from any man under him, and a certain captain once sent word that it was impossible to get his ship, to such add such a place on a given date. "Umph!" replied "Jacky Fisher," as he is known in the service. "Tell Captain Blank that if he is not ready to leave for X—on the day named I'll have him towed there."

A Well-Earned Honor.

Cordial congratulations from members of the Liberal party reached Sir Robert Hudson, chief agent of the Liberal party, when he was knighted in 1905, for his long and successful career and goodwill of political opponents as well as political friends. The knight-hood came to him as a complete surprise, being carefully planned by the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman; and it was an honor richly deserved, for, thanks to Sir Robert, the Liberal party was never better equipped, for fighting than it is today.

 "Just two kisses," replied the merchant.

$3,600 in Cash Prizes for Farmers

ARE you going to build that new horseblock, sidewalk, or dairy house of cement? Then insist on your dealer supplying you with the "CANADA" Cement. Not only will this ensure your getting a pure, uniform and strictly high-grade cement, that will guarantee the life-permanency of the thing you build, but it will also entitle you to enter our Prize Contest. And in this contest you stand a good chance of winning a prize that will perhaps more than pay you for the cost of the work. Every farmer in Canada who uses "CANADA" Cement is eligible to compete. Four prizes will be awarded in each Province and these prizes will be divided as follows:
 PRIZE "A"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who builds the greatest number of barrels of "CANADA" Cement.
 PRIZE "B"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who uses "CANADA" Cement on his farm in 1911 for the greatest number of barrels.
 PRIZE "C"—$50.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who enters the photograph showing the best of any particular kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement.
 PRIZE "D"—$50.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who submits the best and most complete description of the use of any kind of cement.

The Canada Cement Company, Limited, Montreal, Que.

Notice how we have purposely planned and imposed certain necessary conditions in order to give large and small users of cement an equal opportunity.
 As an illustration of this: In prize "C" and "D," the quantity of cement used has no bearing whatever on the result. The farmer who sends us the best photograph of as small a thing as a watering trough or a gate post, has as much chance for prize "C" as a man who sends a photograph of a house—and the same applies to prize "D."
 Don't hold back from entering because you think you don't know anything about concrete work. It's very simple. Besides, we have a 160-page book that we will send you free on request, which tells you all about concrete and how to make and use it. In this book you'll find complete instructions for the making of almost everything you can think of in the way of farm utilities, floors, vats, troughs, stairs, posts, etc.
 This free book—entitled "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete"—will not only inform you—it will also greatly interest you. So send for it anyway, whether you intend to try for one of the prizes or not.

Note and Comment

It is all very well to tell what you would do for humanity if you had a hundred thousand, but why not help what you can if you have only the hundred without the thousand added.

The ball boys were rather retricious about the score at the game in Bowden on last Saturday, but then you know that Wegener's arm will persist in giving out just about the time there are three men on bases, and nobody out.

The Chronicle has had to enlarge a little for next week to make room for our ever growing patronage.
The people of Crossfield realize that the Chronicle has awakened, and doing their best to keep are it so, by giving it their support.

The money spent in advertising should not be looked upon as given to charity, even when given to a country paper as there is no doubt but that it improves the business as well as advertises the town.
Every firm represented in the local paper shows that much in the town, and if every business was represented in the Chronicle, Crossfield would make a very good showing indeed.

The editor of the "Advocate," Cochrane, has been trying for some few advertising for a long time by a finding fault with the Calgary dailies and failing to reach this end came out last week with a rabid attack on the Principle of the Cochrane Public School. He must have a little money to spend or he wouldn't be hunting for a libel suit so hard.

A TRAMPLESS PROVINCE

There is a gloom among the members of the ancient if not royal order of tramps, for plans are now under way to make Quebec the first trampless province in the country and to change it from a paradise of panhandlers, which it now is, to a territory to be shunned by every professional hobo. Of the 200,000 tramps in the whole country figures show that about 20,000 of this army of special parasites are always to be found in this state and about 10,000 in Montreal alone.
More than $1,000,000 a year is spent for the maintenance of this army in jails and other institutions while the cost of the damage to property and crimes committed together with general contributions brings the total up to $5,000,000.
While the plan by which it is proposed to wipe out this wasteful expenditure and at the same time eliminate the tramp problem has never been tried in this country it has proven so successful abroad that there is no doubt as to its efficiency here. It proposes to establish somewhere in the country a tramp farm colony to which vagrants can be sent and where the products of their labor be used toward their maintenance. The professional hobo for whom work has no attractions will doubtless give those sent to the farm will be given an opportunity to become useful citizens. The most successful of these colonies abroad actually makes money, and it is believed that a similar result could be accomplished here. The matter is now before the Legislature in the form of a bill providing for the acquirement of the necessary land and within about one minute after its passage there is certain to occur the greatest tramp scarcity ever known.

$29,000 are offered in prizes and purses at the forthcoming Calgary Industrial Exhibition to be held at Calgary June 30th to July 7th, and in addition to this, freight transportation is paid by the Exhibition Co. on all exhibits originating in Alberta. In addition to a splendid display of live stock and industrial exhibits, the best programme of attractions ever seen in Canada west of Toronto has been provided, and it is expected that fully one hundred thousand visitors will attend the exhibition. Almost everyone will be interested in the daily flights of Strobil's Aeroplane, and the demonstrations of the Mono-Rail Car, to say nothing of the fireworks, music and other attractions, which are the best that money can secure.
Prize lists can be had on application to the manager, E. L. Richardson, Victoria Park, Calgary, and entries close on June 15th.

It was dark enough and sheltered enough in that secluded corner of the hall for Venera to draw the girl towards him and kiss her lips passionately. Just for a brief moment Venera lay in her husband's arms; then, with a little sigh, she disappeared, and she disappeared slowly up the stairs.

She had placed Beth in her own room, which they could share together for that night, at any rate. The younger girl was sleeping placidly; there was a smile on her face—her lips were parted like those of one who is entirely happy. She made a fair picture as she lay there with her yellow hair streaming over her shoulders. She murmured in her sleep, as Venera bent over her and brushed her forehead lightly with her lips.

"Oh, I wonder how long this cloud will last!" Venera murmured. "How much longer it shall be till I am free. How terrible it is to have the offer of a good man's love and have to go as I do, or, at least, as I appear to do. And yet, it should be a happy woman if I could only throw these shackles off."

Venera paused, unable to say more, for something seemed to rise in her throat and choke her. She was utterly tired and worn out, almost too tired to undress and get into bed and yet once she was on the pillow she could not sleep; she tossed and turned wearily. All London seemed to be turning into one noisy collection of clocks. The noise and the dim, deserted street and the beating of hammers on her brain. She fell off presently into a troubled sleep, full of dreams. It seemed to her that she was locked in a safe and somebody outside was hammering at the walls to let her free.

Then she became conscious that somebody was heavily knocking at the door. Venera stumbled out of bed a clock struck three. She flicked up the light and opened the door. A sleep-looking chambermaid handed her a note, which was marked "Urgent."

She took the envelope. With a thrill Venera recognized the handwriting of Mark Fenwick. What new disaster was there which she wondered.

"Is there anybody waiting for an answer?" she asked tremblingly. "The messenger downstairs?"

"Yes, miss," the chambermaid replied. "It was brought by a gentleman in a motor. I told you he was here in bed and fast asleep, but he came and I was to wake you. Perhaps you had better read it."

With a hand that trembled Venera tore open the envelope. There were only two or three lines in Fenwick's stiff handwriting. They were curt and discourteous and very much to the point. They ran as follows:

"I am writing this from Canterbury, where I have been for the last hour and where I have important business. I have been waiting for you, and you are to come back at once. Whatever happens see that you obey me."

"You will tell the gentleman I will be down in a few moments," Venera said. "I will be down in any longer than I can help."

"What is to be done?" the girl wondered directly she was alone. She felt that she dared not disobey this command; she would have to go at all costs. She knew better experience that Fenwick was not the man to brook contradiction. Besides, at the present moment it would be a fatal thing to arouse his suspicions, and, yet, a great how impossible it was for her to leave Beth here in the circumstances. Nor could she see how she could tell Venera at this hour and explain what had happened. All she could resort to was to scribble a few lines to him with a view to explaining the outline of the new situation. Ten minutes later she was in the hall, where she found the man awaiting her. He was clad in furs, his motor cap pulled over his eyes, as if he shrank from observation; but all the same Venera recognized him.

"So it is you, Jones," she said. "Do you know that you have sent all the way from Canterbury to fetch me at this time in the morning? It is perfectly monstrous that I should be dragged out of bed like this; perfectly disgraceful."

"I don't know how to explain about this, miss," the man said sullenly. "It is the governor's orders, and he gave me pretty plainly to understand that you would want to know the reason why if I came back without you. Don't blame me."

"I'm not blaming you at all," Venera said coldly. "Nor am I going to stand here and listen to your words. You will just go to my room and put on a fur coat—then I shall be ready."

"Very well, miss. That's the way to take it. But where is the other young lady got to?"

Venera's heart fairly stood still at a moment. Fenwick's note had said nothing about her sister, though the man seemed to be aware of the fact that she was here. There was only one thing to do, and that was to lie boldly and without hesitation. She looked the speaker in the face in blank astonishment.

"I fall to understand you," she said. "There is nobody here but me, and there could be nobody but me. And now, I have nothing further to say. One moment and I will be with you."

CHAPTER XVII.
Merton Grange.

Venera came down a few moments later ready for her journey. Now that she had had time to think matters over, she was looking forward with some dread to her forthcoming interview with Mark Fenwick. Surely something out of the common must have taken place, or he would never have sent for her at such an extraordinary time, and Venera had always one thing to contend with; she had not forgotten, in fact she could not forget, that for the last three years she had been engaged in plotting steadily against the man by whose name she was known. Moreover, she was not on the least blind to Fenwick's astuteness, and she was always the unpleasant feeling that he might be playing with her. She had always loathed and detested this from the bottom of her soul; there were times when she doubted whether or not he was a relation of hers, or far as Venera knew, he was supposed to be her mother's half brother, and so much as this she owed the man—he had come to her at the time when she was nearly destitute, and in no position to turn her back on his advances. That is what Fenwick to her was, a well-to-do man, who, when she knew perfectly well, but long before would she have left him, she was quite certain that Fenwick was at the bottom of the dreadful business which had resulted in her mother's death.

But as to all this, Venera could say nothing at the moment. All she had to do now was to guard her heart from a surprise on the part of Fenwick. She had been startled by the mere suggestion on the part of her companion that he had not been alone at the Grand Empire Hotel. Much to this point, she had the prudence to say nothing. Silently she stepped into the car, a big Mercedes, with great gliding eyes. Silently, too, she was looking at the street.

It wanted yet three hours to daylight, and Venera asked how long they would be in reaching their destination. Her companion put on speed once the outskirts of the town were reached. Venera could feel the cold air streaming past her face like a touch of ice.

"Oh, about an hour and a half," the driver said carelessly. "I suppose it is about fifty-five miles. With these big lamps and these clear roads we'll just fly along."

The speaker touched a lever and the car seemed to jump over the smooth roads. The hedges and hedges flew by like a stream of water, the whole car seemed to vibrate to the roar and rattle of the car. It was Venera's first experience of anything like this, and she held her breath in terror.

"What would happen if a wheel gave way?" she asked. "She had muffled her face in her veil, so that she could breathe more freely now. Surely such a pace as this is dangerous."

"You have to take risks, miss," the driver said coolly. "We are moving at about five and forty miles an hour now. I'm very sorry if it makes you nervous, but my instructions were to get back as speedily as possible."

"I don't feel exactly nervous," Venera said. "Oh, no, you are getting over it. Everybody does after the first few moments. When you get used to the motion you will like it. It gives you a feeling like a glass of champagne when you're tired. You'll see for yourself presently."

"Surely," Venera did see for herself presently. As the feeling of timidity and unfamiliarity were off she began to be conscious of a glow in her blood as if she were breathing some pure mountain air. The breeze fairly sang past her ears, and she felt more smoothly now with nothing to check its movement, and Venera could have sung aloud for the very joy of living. She began to understand the vivid pleasures of motoring; she could even make an excuse for those who travelled the high roads at top speed. Long before she reached her destination she had forgotten everything but the pure delight of that trip in the dark.

"Here we are, miss," the driver said at length, as they turned in through a pair of huge iron gates. "It's a long drive, so far as the house—you can see the lights in front of you."

"Have we really come all that way in this short time?" Venera asked. "It only seems about ten minutes since we started."

The driver made no reply and Venera had a little time to look curiously about her. So far as the lights they were in a large park now, filled with magnificent timber. Here and there through the shadows of the trees she seemed to see figures flitting, and she assumed to be deer. On each side of the avenue rose a line of elm trees, beyond which were culminating in a fine house of the late Tudor period. Beyond question it was a fine old family mansion in which Fenwick had taken up his quarters for the present.

"What do you call the place?" Venera asked. "This is Merton Grange, miss." "This is Merton Grange, miss," the driver replied. "It belongs to Lord Somebody or other. I forgot his name. Anyway, he has had to let the house for a time and go abroad. You had better get out here and I'll take the car round to the stables. I would ring the bell if I were you, miss. I'd just walk straight into the house. You'll find the door open and the governor ready to receive you. He is sure to have heard the car coming up the drive."

Tired as she was and frightened as she was feeling now, Venera could not but admire the beauty and symmetry of the place. Like most of the historic mansions of today the place had been fitted with electric light, and a soft illuminating glow filled the hall. It was a magnificent oak-paneled apartment filled with old armor and trophies, and lined with portraits of the owner's ancestors. It seemed to Venera that anybody might be happy here. It also seemed strange that a man of Fenwick's type should choose a place like this for his habitation. She was destined to know later on what Fenwick had in his mind when he came here.

To Withstand Earthquakes.

A new method of constructing the foundations of buildings in order to prevent as much as possible earthquake shocks from being communicated to the buildings has been devised and patented by Dr. J. A. Calantraris of Scarborough. In this system the foundation, which is built in the usual manner is faced with hard material, such as granite or iron, and this facing layer is of talc, mica or other soft material. The facing layer, each layer being dusted with powdered talc, mica, asbestos, soapstone or sand, or mats of asbestos, etc., may be used without the plates or slabs of granite or iron placed on this prepared zone form the base of the superstructure. The object of the arrangement is in the case of an earthquake to allow the building to slide laterally. The service pipes are flexible at the point where they issue from the ground.—London Mail.

Pierpont Morgan Braves Superstition. No. 12 Holborn, London, is a large proportion of the London streets, and in this particular city men appear to be quite as superstitious as other folk. There is no No. 12 in Holborn, Threapstone street, London street or Tokenhouse yard. Other leading thoroughfares from which this number is lacking include the Strand, the Haymarket, St. James' street, Park lane and Westmoreland street. On the other hand, and Mr. Pierpont Morgan bravely the superstition by housing his priceless art treasures at 13 Prince's gate, and in his own mansion has for years carried on a prosperous business at 13 Friday street. It would be hard to devise a more bloodcurdling address than this.—London Chronicle.

An Advertising Show. An "advertising pantomime" is in course of preparation in Berlin. This novel form of publicity is being adopted by one of the large retail establishments of the capital, which has commissioned a distinguished composer to write the music of the production. The plot deals with two poor children found starving by a fairy on Christmas eve. She proceeds to take them in a series of scenes, through the various departments of the great shop, giving them presents. Comic characters, clowns and a ballet lead buoyant relief. The pantomime will probably be produced at one of the Berlin theaters, customers at the shop receiving free tickets.

Hale at 102. Able to shake off a severe cold that settled on her, and threatened pneumonia, is the remarkable 102-year-old Mrs. Brian Brailsford, still active and optimistic at the unusual age of 102 years. This venerable woman lives near the village of Chantry, in Leeds county, with her youngest daughter, Mrs. D. Wood, wife of a well-known farmer.

A Courtier's Retort. Queen Bess had a pretty wit, too, which she used upon her subjects. She got the worst of it in one verbal duel with a courtier. Observing in the course of the conversation that she had promised a promotion that had not yet been received, the courtier said: "May I hear out of the window and called to him."

"What does a man think of, Sir Edward, when he thinks of nothing?"

"Of a woman's promise, your majesty," was Sir Edward's response.

Terrible Eczema for 25 Years Cured by Cuticura Remedies

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, 'try them if you like but I do not think they will do you good.' At this time my leg was peeling from the knee down, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a case of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After using them for ten days, the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the new skin grown on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me, and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura wrought. I have many grandchildren and they are frequent users of Cuticura and always recommend it most highly as a sure and economical cure for skin troubles." (Signed) Mrs. J. B. THE GROWING TIME

POPULATION WILL BE MUCH GREATER THAN ANTICIPATED

Reports from Census Bureau Officials indicate that the Population in Many Districts is Considerably Larger Than Was Expected—Great Increases in Population West of the Great Lakes.

Ottawa.—Canada's initial census taking, which began June 1, will take three years to complete. The tabulating and analysis of the population, figures of the extensive information asked for in regard to trade, industry, etc., will keep the census bureau busy for that length of time. The total population will not be definitely known until October, though an approximate figure may be given a month or so earlier.

The returns will begin to come in from the cities in about a fortnight's time, but the enumerators have three weeks' time allowed to collect their work and the commissioners are allowed another month to make a forward return to Ottawa. The work of tabulating and compilation will be done at the census bureau, and specially designed tabulating and computing machines, similar to those used in Washington for the census of last year.

Charles W. Spicer, an official of the American census bureau who has been temporarily borrowed by the Canadian bureau, is now in Toronto supervising the manufacture of a number of machines to be used in tabulating the schedules turned in by the enumerators. Reports from census bureau officials who have been reviewing reports as to the prospective work required for the census in the various parts of the Dominion, indicated that the population in many districts is considerably larger than was estimated. The final figures will probably show a population increase of about 50 per cent. from the decade. West of the Great Lakes it is estimated there are now about a million and a half more people than there were in 1901. Eastern Canada should show an increase of a little over a million and a half.

POTATO GROWING COMPETITION

Competition Open to Potato Growers of the Whole North American Continent

Calgary.—Among the premiums offered at the New York land and irrigation exposition in Madison Square Gardens, next November, is a $1,000 silver trophy cup, presented by Mr. Stillwell, which is open to competition of potato growers of the whole North American continent.

Circular letters are being sent out by the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Colonization Co., to the department of agriculture of each of the four Western provinces, and to the secretaries of agricultural societies in each province, outlining the possibilities.

The exhibit must not be from one grower only but from any society, province or district, which may collect the best samples grown and enter them as one exhibit. In the awarding of the prize the following qualities will be considered: Smoothness, marketable quality, flush eyes, uniformity of size, and yield of each variety per acre, officially surveyed as sworn by the grower.

Since the competition is open to America, the value in advertising is very great.

ONE VICTORY FOR ROYAL BANK

In No Hurry About Hurrying the Alberta and Great Waterway Case Along

Edmonton.—Mr. Justice Beck, sitting in chambers, recently refused the application made on behalf of the province by Deputy Attorney General Clarry to have the Royal Bank case set down for hearing at the June sessions of the supreme court in Edmonton. Application was opposed by Frank Ford, K.C., representing the Alberta and Great Waterways railway and the Canada West Construction company on the ground that sufficient reason was given in the defence to the action filed by those defendants why the case should not be heard in June. Justice Beck decided that such was the case so hearing of the action will stand over till the sitting of the supreme court in September, unless the appeal is taken from the decision of Mr. Justice Beck at the June sittings of the court en banc in Calgary.

Big Procession, Over Mile Long.

London.—The details of the coronation procession are now sufficiently completed to show that it will be a splendid cavalcade, over a mile long. The representatives of the foreign countries will not ride in the procession, but will be accommodated with seats on the stands alongside the route. Crown Prince Gustave Adolph of Sweden, and the crown prince have arrived in London for the coronation.

Britain Still Mistress of the Seas

London.—More than 170 British warships, from each of the four main squadrons, eighteen foreign warships and sixty ocean liners and private yachts, will cover an area of about six square miles, according to an official chart issued by the admiralty recently, for the Coronation Review of the fleet off Spithead, June 24.

WILL GO AHEAD WITH WORK

Surveys for the Location Will Start from Calgary Within Six Weeks

Calgary.—Within six weeks a general survey for the location of the Alberta Electric Railroad from Calgary to Banff, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and Macleod, will be commenced according to the local manager George E. Wood, who emphatically denied the current rumor that the C.P.R. had made overtures with a view to gaining possession of the road.

The report was that the C.P.R. had got control of the charter, recently granted by the government, favoring serious opposition in transportation in the southern country, which the electric road covers thoroughly.

"We intend going straight ahead with the survey and construction of our lines as soon as we can," said Mr. Wood, who also made known that instead of employing power generated by water or gas, the road would be up-to-date in that it will be furnished with gasoline engines.

There are only four roads on the American continent operated by this means, and Mr. Wood says that a careful investigation has led the directors of the Alberta Electric to believe that this means of locomotion is far ahead of steam.

"The gasoline trains are made just like the ordinary trains with sleeping cars and dining cars," said Mr. Wood, "when they are in operation we shall have one of the most modern systems on the continent."

Should Dominions Be Consulted

London.—At the Imperial conference recently, Premier Fisher, of Australia, said that the time had arrived when each state should be informed and if need be consulted before Britain entered into any arrangements with other countries which the interests of all were affected.

Sir Edward Grey said that consultation had been given the right to make her own treaties. It might embarrass the home government if it had to consult the dominions and if the dominions insisted it would imply that they should take part in that war. On the whole the matter had better be left entirely to the home government.

The declaration of London, which led to the discussion, was an immense step in advance of the first step towards arbitration, taken at Brussels. Sir Joseph Ward and Dr. Findlay spoke in the same strain.

TAKE IMPORTANT STEP

DOMINIONS TO HAVE VOICE IN IMPORTANT MATTERS

Opinion Endorsed that the Dominions Should be Consulted Upon All Questions Wherein They Were Effectually Interested. Approved the Declaration of London, and Passed a Resolution Favoring It.

London.—The Imperial conference discussed the Declaration of London when Premier Botha favored the ratification as did Premier Morris of Newfoundland.

Sir Edward Grey said that generally the Dominions should be consulted. The determination that this would be done would be one of the most important results of the conference.

Premier Fisher withheld his resolution substituting another that the Dominions should be consulted when the government framed up instructions to British negotiators at The Hague conference upon questions affecting the Dominions. Similar procedure would be taken in other international agreements where possible.

The conference approved of the declaration of London and passed a resolution favoring its ratification. The declaration of London was adopted at the conference of the chief navy powers held in London from December, 1908, until February, 1909, on the rules of prize in naval warfare. The object was to draw up a definite code, following the precedent of the Declaration of Paris, 1866, for the purpose of an international prize court to be established in accordance with one of the conventions of the second Hague conference in 1907.

Washington.—"Less sensational, but more valuable" than a ratification of London and passed a resolution favoring its ratification. The declaration of London was adopted at the conference of the chief navy powers held in London from December, 1908, until February, 1909, on the rules of prize in naval warfare.

The resolution adopted by the conference is expected to vitalize the declaration, and place the British foreign office in a position to overcome the opposition, which has threatened a total failure of the effort to obtain an international agreement upon the rules of prize, at sea.

J. J. HILL WILL QUIT SOON

The Veteran Railway Man Wants to Die With His Boots Off—Will Drop All His Interests

Minneapolis.—James J. Hill, for half a century identified with the development of the north west as no other man has been, is preparing the way for retirement from active business life and the filing recently of the $500,000 mortgage on the Great Northern, is the first step, according to Mr. Hill's own statement.

He characterized recently as "rubbish" the stories of the Great Northern and Burlington consolidation and of the combining of the Northern Pacific and the Chicago and North-western for Chicago Great Western. "I am 73 years old and do not want to die with my boots on," Mr. Hill said. "My interests are large and cannot be dropped in a moment. If I am going to have any leisure in my life it is about time I had it and I have taken the first step towards securing it."

"Preparations for fifty years to come for the retirement of bonds now outstanding as they fall due and for other issues to provide money to keep up the road and build extensions and make improvements that we expect will have to be made, is the true reason for the mortgage."

ANOTHER WOMAN FARMER

Miss Helena Hill, of Seattle, Buys Section of Land Near Sedgewick

Calgary.—Miss Jack May, the young English woman farmer, who recently settled near Sedgewick, is to have a rival in her fascinating occupation in Alberta. Miss Helena Hill, a young girl from Seattle, has purchased a section of land from the C. P. R. near Sedgewick and is at present supervising the breaking and sowing of 100 acres to flax.

Miss Hill intends to go into farming on a large scale. Next year she will build a house and buy stock and implements and will bring the remainder of the 640 acres under cultivation. Her friend, Mr. Hillard, also of Seattle, will supervise her house and Miss Hill the "farm."

Vancouver Employers Satisfied.

Vancouver.—The Vancouver employers have formally replied to the Minister of Labor declining his offer to intervene in the threatened labor trouble.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON XI.—SECOND QUARTER, JUNE 11, 1911.

Text of the Lesson, 11 Chron. xxx, 15-27—Memory Verses, 18-20—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This Hosheiah, whose name signifies "the strength of Jehovah," was one of the best kings that reigned over the kingdom of Judah. In the sixth year of his reign the king of Assyria carried the ten tribes into captivity, as we shall learn more fully in next week's lesson (11 Kings ix, 10-12). The king of Assyria threatened to do to Judah as he had done to Israel and wrote a blasphemous letter which Hosheiah spread before the Lord, and he and the prophet Isaiah prayed and cried to heaven, and the Lord sent an angel who smote in one night 185,000 of the Assyrian army (11 Kings xix, 35) (1 Chron. xx, 19-21, 1932).

Ahaz, the father of Hosheiah, had done very wickedly. He worshipped other gods, and in every corner of the house of God, shut up the doors of the house of the Lord and made him sleep in every corner of the house, and in the cities of Judah. Therefore the Lord did bring Judah low because of him (11 Chron. xxv, 1-2).

Hosheiah in the first month of the first year of his reign opened the doors of the house of the Lord and repaired them and set the priests and Levites to work to cleanse the temple, which they did in sixteen days. Then they offered sin offerings unto the Lord for Israel, and burnt offerings, and thank offerings, and vowed offerings. Hosheiah with gladness. "So the service of the house of the Lord was set in order, and Hosheiah was permitted to the people that God had prepared the order, and that thing was done suddenly" (chapter xxx, 15-17, 1932).

The regular time to keep the Passover in the first month being past because of the time it took to cleanse the altar, Hosheiah determined to keep it in the second month. This was permitted in the law (Num. ix, 9-11). Hosheiah had the Passover kept throughout all Israel from Dan to Beersheba, that they should come to keep the Passover before the Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem, for it was a long time since the feast had been kept (verses 18-19). The last of which we have a record was in the days of Joshua, when at Gilgal they kept it upon entering the land (Josh. v, 10). Before that there is a record of only two Passovers, one in Egypt and one a year later.

After the time of our lesson we have only a record of two more in the Old Testament, the great Passover of Josiah, and the one in the days of Ezra at the dedication of the temple after the return from Babel (1 Chron. xxv, 18; 2 Chron. vi, 16-17). We can scarcely think that these were the only Passovers kept, but these are the only ones recorded. If we include the one that the Lord Jesus so greatly desired to keep with his disciples (Luke xxi), then we have a record of just seven great Passovers. Of the lessons for our own time, the last of which was words, "When I see the blood I will pass over you." It was not the blood and something else, but the blood of only the applied blood of the slain lamb that gave safety. See Lev. xxi, 11; Heb. ix, 22; 1 Cor. x, 16; 1 Pet. i, 19; 1 John i, 7.

Nothing can by any means add to the salvation which is ours in Christ Jesus, but because of it may the Lord grant us a great appetite for the Lamb, and as He said by the Father may we, eating Him, live by Him (John vi, 57). This call to all Israel to turn to the Lord might truly be spoken of as a last call to the Gentiles, for six years later they were carried captive by the king of Assyria. As the poets passed from city to city through Ephraim and Manasse, even unto Zebulun, some laughed them to scorn and mocked them, and some humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem (verses 10, 11). Verse 12 seems to teach that God can bless only those who are willing that He should lay His hand upon them for good.

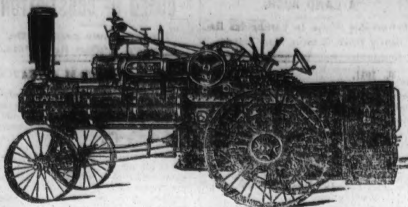

Until He shall come again in power and glory we cannot expect anything different from Acts xxviii, 24. "Some believed, and some believed not." Wheat and tares will grow together until the end of the age. Notwithstanding the rebellious ones a very great congregation assembled at Jerusalem to keep the Passover (verse 13). They cleansed the city of idolaters and killed the Passover and kept the feast not only for seven days, but so great was their joy because they had truly turned to the Lord and He had so blessed them that they kept the feast for another seven days. There was greater joy in Jerusalem than had been since the days of Solomon.

Hosheiah spoke comfortingly or to the heart of all the Levites that taught the good knowledge of the Lord (verse 22, margin), and so he was greatly used of God in his revival. The heart of a heart, blood from the heart of God to the hearts. His people (Isa. li, 2, margin), and His word, which we not reach our hearts with comfort and strength we hear a very strong voice. "Thy servant a hearing heart" (1 Kings iii, 9, margin). What a splendid record of this revival. The last chapter, xx, 21, 1932. "He wrought that which was good and right and true before the Lord and his word, which it with all his heart and prospered."

"THE SELKIRK," THE NEW PALATIAL HOTEL OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC IN WINNIPEG.

The above is the plan which has been approved by the Grand Trunk Pacific management for the new hotel, which the company intends to erect in Manitoba. This hotel, which in appearance and luxuriance of appointments is to be the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa, will cost in round figures one million dollars. It will be situated on Broadway, near the Manitoba Club, and close to the new Union Station. It has been definitely decided to call the hotel "The Selkirk," which not only has the merit of being a highly distinctive and appropriate name, but also one which is historically associated with Winnipeg, and with the development of the West generally.

Messrs. Ross & MacFarlane, of Montreal, are the architects for the hotel. They are now working on the detailed plans, and construction is to commence forthwith. This hotel will be the first of a class of similar hotels to be erected throughout the West by the company. The management has announced the purchase of a centrally situated site opposite the Edmonton Club on McDougall Avenue, Edmonton, for the erection of the near future of another large hotel. The company also just closed a deal by which it secures a very advantageous site for a new station to be erected in the City of Calgary.
